

Join Neighborhood Public Radio in the 2008 Whitney Biennial of American Art.

For the duration of this celebrated survey of American art (March –May) we will be broadcasting shows of approximately 30 minutes to one hour in length that are produced by local artists, activists, musicians, and talkers. We like to focus on under-represented voices, and will definitely favor voices or sounds that have little hope of being featured in other venues.

We encourage individuals of all sorts with something to say to come by our studio/storefront at 941 Madison Avenue (@ 74th Street) or contact us at the email below to be added to the schedule.

Broadcasting officially begins the evening of March 4th and will continue until about May 31st. Initially our broadcast hours will be Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday from 11am – 6pm, and Fridays from 1pm-9pm.

Feel free to email NPR : npr [at] neighborhoodpublicradio.org or stop by the storefront during the hours above - before the show begins or at anytime after that.
